HAVE ORGANIZED TO PURGE WHOLE REPUBLICAN PARTY

PROGRESSIVES IN CONGRESS HAVE PERFECTED THEIR ORGANIZATION AIDED
BY OUTSIDERS.

SEEK TO CONTROL AFFAIRS

So That They Can Dominate the Convention of the C. O. P. in 1912
at the Earliest.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Carrying a possibly greater significance than any political movement in years, the formation of the national progressive republican league was announced here
today, backed by nine United States senators, six governors, thirteen congressmen and many other prominent progressives.

The new organization binds itself to make a nation-wide fight "for the establishment of popular government."

The movement is looked upon here today as the opening wedge of the fight of the progressives to gain control of the party before the next Presidential election.

In the senate the organization is composed of the La Follette-Cummings-Heveridge faction, with Senator Bourne —Republican of Oregon—named as president of the league.

On the house side, the Norris-Murdock insurgent element forms the representation.

"The first move will be to push to the front the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for popular election of senators. Senator Borah, or in his absence some other progressive, will move that this amendment be made the unfinished business of the senate. The progressives claim that they have the votes necessary to sidetrack the ocean mail subsidy bill
for this measure.

Once the popular election measure comes before the senate it will be kept there to the exclusion of all other legislation until a vote has been taken.
Thereafter the Lorimer case will be brought forward and held in the proposed position until disposed of, after which the tariff commission bill will be called up.

These are the three bills that attention is to be concentrated on. If the plan works out, other legislation which the progressives favor, will be called up, and so far as they are able they will dominate the situation in the senate until the hour of adjournment on March 4.

In plain language the insurgents,
flushed with their victories at the polls last November, are maneuvering
to seize control of the republican party in the senate. Looking beyond this, to the next session of congress,
when their forces will be increased by the addition of several more progressives and the regulars will have lost the services of Hale, Aldrich and Burrows and other reactionaries, and looking still further forward to the national convention of 1912, they are planning to seize control of the entire party organization, and, if possible, organize the convention with their own forces and dictate the nominee.

Engaged in this movement are such men as Cummings, La Follette, Bristol, Norah, Brown of Nebraska, Bourne, Clapp and Beveridge. All of these men have had conferences during the past week with other near-progressives
and House members have been pledged to do their utmost to further the scheme.

They figure out that by assuming the offensive now on the popular measures pending before congress,
they can assert their leadership before
the country and challenge the Taft forces either to follow them, or fall back into the ranks of the reactionaries.
They admit a belief that the President favors all of the measures which they intend to press, but they say that the President will not though he has been given every chance, assume a militant leadership in that therefore the republican party is to be saved they must take the initiative.

The final conference of the progressives was held last night at the Union station, to which unusual place
they adjourned in order to be away from prying eyes. Senator Borah is confined to his room with a cold and may not be able to appear in his place
today and make the opening move.
In that event, the advance will be postponed until Tuesday.

Incidental to the plan, the presidential boom of Cummings and La Follette are involved. Just now both are working together in order to put Taft in a hole and swing the republican leadership. When that has been achieved the clash will come.

The officers of the new league are:
Senator Bourne, Oregon, is president,
Gov. Osborn, Michigan, vice president,
and Representative Hubbard, of Iowa, Learout of Wisconsin. Members of the executive committee.

The Wisconsin members are: Gov.
McGovern, Senator La Follette; Congressmen Cooper, Curry, Morse, Nelson; from Iowa, Senator Cummings and Congressman Haugen.

spoke in support of the findings of the majority of sub-committee that investigated the election of Senator Lorimer.

been used in the Illinois legislature

but maintained. There was no evidence of the belief that such funds
were used for the election of a senator.

ber, Ambushed In Narrow Mountain Gorge, Report Says.

one hundred government troops were

Ojibhuca was the report received here today. According to the report two hundred government soldiers were lured into a narrow mountain gorge.
A dead fire was poured into them
from high above and the retreat was ordered but before the men could escape at least half their number were torial deadlock remained practically ties are taking extra precautions to

HASKELL NAMED IN THREE CIVIL SUITS HONDURAS CONTROLS SUPPLY OF LIQUOR CHARLTON MAKING DESPERATE FIGHT

Former Governor Is Defendant In Each And Recovery of Large Sums Is Sought.

Washington, Jan. 23.—A monopoly of the manufacture of rum in Honduras is held by the Government and the business is conducted on the basis of a very liberal profit, according to a report from Consul Haskell who attends to the interests of the United States in the Republic. The Government contracts with distillers in various parts of the country for supplies of
rum. One of these informed Haskell that it cost three cents to produce a bottle containing 18 ounces. It is sold to the Government for seven cents and by the latter distributed among the ultimate consumers at 60 cents a bottle. The rum is called guano and is made from sugar cane.

Roads Needed.
As to the need of roads Haskell
says:
"One of the enterprising merchants of Tegucigalpa said that he is at present transporting machinery to his farm, 20 miles east of the city. During the last week the oxen advanced three miles. At many places his oxen had to stop and fix the road before proceeding."

"To transport heavy machinery to the San Juan to mine from the coast requires from two to two and a half miles, sometimes seven weeks from Tegucigalpa to the mine, a distance of 21 miles. For 12 out of these 21 miles the block and tackle must be used, and it takes from 30 to 50 oxen to move a piece of machinery weighing over 6 tons."

Haskell also makes some observation on the Panama hat industry to this effect:
"About 15,000 of these hats are made annually by women of Santa Barbara. The palm leaf, from which they are made, is called 'juncos.' The most tender leaves are selected and exposed to sulphur smoke, moisture, and the rays of the sun. The price is about 18 cents gold for two dozen leaves, the amount needed for one hat. It takes about two weeks to make an ordinary hat and one month to make a fine
one."

A round block, called 'horina,' is used as a form for making the crown.
After this part is finished a table is used, provided with one or more holes, into which the crown is dropped and
the rim woven on top of the table.
These hats are sold from $1.20 to $1.4, according to their quality. They are made during the wet season, as the wet season a damp cloth is constantly used to moisten the straw while weaving. When they are finished, they are placed in a large box and again subjected to sulphur fumes,
after which they are ready for the market."

The first trial of Tegeler took place nearly three years ago and resulted in his conviction. Pending an appeal to the supreme court he spent about two years in the penitentiary. A new trial was granted because the first juror died before he signed the record in the case. The second trial which ended last October resulted in a jury disagreement. Ten members of the jury are said to have favored conviction and two were for acquittal. Since the last trial Tegeler has been at liberty under $25,000 bond. What is regarded as the strongest evidence against him is the fact that after the murder was discovered he led the officers to the place where the body was buried.

FEAR REPEAL OF "DRY"
LAWS IN TENNESSEE
Anti-Saloon League Will Make Fight Against Any Attempt To Repeal Laws In Legislature.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 23.—Following that the "dry" laws are in danger of being repealed by the legislature now
in session, the Tennessee Anti-Saloon League began a two days' conference
here today to decide upon such steps
as may be necessary to prevent the repeal of the State-wide prohibition law and the law prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Tennessee. The laws are regarded as among the most drastic of their kind adopted in any of the states and were placed on the statute books only after a long and bitter contest.

STATE WILL FIGHT CASE AGAINST THE U. S. GOVERNMENT

Implicant Points Of Law Involved
In Fred Light Case Opened Before
U. S. Supreme Court Today.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—Not the least interesting among the many important cases that have come before the Supreme Court of the United States at this session is the so-called Fred Light case, which came up for argument before the highest tribunal
today on an appeal from the United States district court of Colorado. The case involves the broad question of States' rights, with especial reference to the conservation policies inaugurated by the Roosevelt administration.

The case has been in the courts for more than three years. Fred Light, a stockman of Pitkin county, Colorado, allowed several hundred head of his cattle to stray into the Holy Cross forest reserve and a complaint was brought against him by the United States forest service. Despite Light's claim that the formation of the reserve without the consent of the state was in violation of the Federal Constitution and that action for trespass could not be maintained under the Colorado laws unless the land in question had been fenced Judge Lewis of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Colorado sustained the forest service and fined Light. The case was then appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The State of Colorado has joined in the fight against the Federal government in an effort to have the action of the United States in creating the big forest reservations of the West declared unconstitutional. The state has appropriated $20,000 for the expenses of the case and has sent Attorney General John T. Barrett to conduct the argument before the court.

Habeas Corpus Proceedings To Prevent Extradition To Italy Were Heard In Trenton Today.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 23.—The habeas corpus proceedings to prevent the extradition of Porter Charlton to Italy to stand trial for the murder of his wife, Mary Scott Castle Charlton, again came up before Judge Bellah
in the United States circuit court here today. The department of State at Washington has honored the request of the Italian Government for Charlton's extradition, but the turning over
of the young man to the Italian authorities was blocked by Paul Charlton, the prisoner's father, who applied for the writ of habeas corpus.

Among the preliminary questions to be considered in deciding the writ of habeas corpus is whether the United States circuit court, through a writ of exemplification, can compel the State department at Washington to produce all the diplomatic correspondence between the two countries on the subject of extradition.

witnesses tending to show a family
conspiracy existed against Mrs.
Schenk.

The prosecution rested its case
there being no rebuttal offered. Instructions to the jury will be read and the closing arguments begin this afternoon.

ner Was Today Given Lightest

ner, charged with killing Joseph Walczak in a boarding house here
September 25, was today sentenced to Hackens. The prisoner protested his innocence. The sentence was the oner under the verdict of manslaughter.

appointments are expected to be sent to the senate tomorrow by Gov. Mc-Govern. The executive will arrive here tonight from Milwaukee. The appointment of five members of the state board of control is expected.
Four appointments to the state board of agriculture will also probably be made.

BERGER PLANS TO PRESENT MEASURE

SOCIALISTIC CONGRESSMAN
WANTS TO PENSION AGED
AND DECREPIT.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 23.—One of the first bills ever to be introduced in to the United States congress by a socialist and perhaps one of the most sweeping measures for the government protection of aged and decrepit working people ever known to America
will be introduced early in the session by Victor M. Berger, the socialist congressman-elect of Milwaukee.

This bill will provide a pension for every wage earner in the United States who has attained an age of sixty years or over and who has earned less than $1,000 during any year of servitude. A monthly remittance from the government of not less than twelve dollars is provided for all workmen or women in the measure now being drafted by Mr. Berger.

Mr. Berger has written for the United Press an article outlining his plans, the conditions of the bill congress will be called upon by him to act upon and the reasons why such a measure should be made a law by the highest law making bodies.

We have a plank in our platform
which reads as follows:
"To enact a law granting every wage-worker over 60 years of age, who has earned less than $1,000 a year and has been a citizen of the United States for sixteen years, a pension of not less than $12 a month for the rest of his or her life."

"And one of the first bills that I shall introduce will treat this subject.
The term wage-worker means a woman
as well as a man. It denotes any person working for wages, whether clerk, stenographer, hired girl or washer-woman, or a railroad engineer, typesetter or bookkeeper."

"The fundamental question as to who is to foot the bill is a question which is easily answered. Why, of course the working men who foot the bill. They are the ones who pay the taxes and they are the ones who are the backbone of the nation, for the army and navy and for innumerable other things. They ought to be able to get back at least a little share of all that they have given for themselves as an old age pension."

"Under our plan there will be not quite a million men and women receiving a pension of $12 a year. That would amount to about $144,000,000 a year—a mere bagatelle for Uncle Sam,
who spent $25,911,708 for the army
in 1910, and $23,178, 177 for the navy, not figuring the new battleships."

"However the United States paid $160,000,416 in 1910 to the veterans of the Civil War and their dependents.
There were still in 1910 quite a number of pensioners of the war of 1812.
And if the bill which has just passed
the house should pass the senate, that will add about $60,000,000 next year
to the pension list."

"Other countries have been paying old-age pensions to the working men for a long time. Germany enacted a sick benefit law in 1883, and an old-age pension law in 1889.
"By the three kinds of insurance—
sick benefit, accident and old age pension—every wage earner in Germany is earning not over $467 a year is insured—a total of over $14,000,000 persona."

"Austria established compulsory insurance for sickness and accident in 1888, and in 1898 a plan for old age pensioners. France has had compulsory insurance since 1905."

UNKNOWN MAN SHOT AUTHOR AND THEN KILLED HIMSELF

David Graham Phillips In Serious Condition As Result Of Murderous Assault.

New York, N. Y., Jan. 23.—David Graham Phillips, the author was shot
while on his way from his home to the Princeton Club by an unidentified man
this afternoon. Four or five shots were fired, two taking effect. His condition is serious. The man then shot himself and died at the hospital.
About half a block from the club house Phillips was approached by a man in rough "smock" and began warning him to draw a revolver and began firing. Phillips fell and was taken to the Princeton Club, and then taken to a hospital. The man shot himself and dropped dead in the street. There is no clue as to his identity nor reason for shooting Phillips.

INVESTIGATION TO BE MOST THOROUGH

Grand Jury at Danville Will Hear All Sides of the Alleged Vote Buying.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 23.—The real work of investigating the charges of wholesale vote traffic in Danville and Vermillion county was begun today by the grand jury. A wholesale confession is expected shortly. Since Rat-terbury more than one hundred additional subpoenas have been served on persons prominent in financial and political circles. H. H. Frankenberger, a local newspaper man, was the first witness before the grand jury today. He told of securing the alleged confession from City Attorney Jones, Saturday, which "confession" Jones
later denied.

HALL & HUEBEL

Money Speaks.
Somerset Maugham, the popular English playwright, was shown by a reporter, during his recent visit to New York, a rather harsh criticism of his work.

Mr. Maugham, with a smile, took out his pocketbook and began to read off to the reporter the "runs" of his various plays:
"Mrs. Dot," 421 nights; "Smith," 217 nights; "Penelope," 399 nights.
No he read on till he had completed the long list of his successes. Then he said:

"When the author of this article has written plays with runs like these, I'll believe his criticism. Till then I prefer to believe in the public and the box office. This isn't a question of words; it's a question of figures."

The handiest thing on your desk—a scratch-pad. Good big block for 5c at Gazette office.

TOBACCO WORKERS START ON LABORS

SEVERAL LOCAL WAREHOUSES HAVE ALREADY BEGUN OPERATIONS.

CROP NOT ALL DELIVERED

Season Late and Will Last Well into the Summer Months.
On Saturday the 1911 season was made in Janesville, following the second period of easing weather, and four of the local warehouses have started work in earnest.

At the close last year, the present crop was late in moving and while some of the firms will begin operations within the next few weeks, many are not sure when they will be ready to commence.

The crop this year is reported as not especially good and it is said that about 75 per cent of the tobacco was about in the field, about half of which was obtained by the foreign companies, having branch concerns in this section.

Labor is plentiful and these warehouses which have started up have had no trouble in securing enough hands. The amount of work which is going on among local tobacco dealers, varies with the amount of the leaf which they have purchased up to date. With the exception of a few, the buying has not been very heavy.

The 1911 business warehouse started in one week ago with sixty hands. This firm expects to keep busy until the late summer. Work opened at the American Tobacco company's building this morning, with a force of forty people. This concern, a representative of an eastern company, has probably purchased more of the product in the field than any of the independent firms.

Sorting began in the warehouse of R. L. Eriar on Pleasant street, last week and about twenty-five men and men are at work there. G. M. Decker, another of the independent dealers, opened this morning with a small force. Many of the other firms intend to open within the next week or two, among which are Sanford Soverhill, S. B. Huddles, and Fisher & Fisher. H. A. Green, MacDoe Bros., and several others are uncertain as to opening, depending largely on the amount of leaf tobacco which comes in in the near future.

A large number have bought and are now awaiting the delivery by the farmer, which seems to be rather slow this season. Some of the people who are not yet sorting and packing have already done some shipping.

While the crop is not much later than last year, all the firms are now about a month behind, but the late easing weather has started the growers in this vicinity handling the crop and deliveries are expected from now on.

OLD RESIDENT WAS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Meribah Moses, five or six years a resident here, passed away Sunday morning.
Mrs. Meribah Moses passed away Sunday morning at nine o'clock at her home, 159 Cherry street. Her death comes as the result of a number of years of feeble health, and the complications arising from old age.

The deceased was born in 1829 at Landsburg, Penn., and in 1848, was married to Levi Moses of that place who has preceded his wife in death by about five years. In 1849 Mr. and Mrs. Moses moved to Milwaukee in search of a business location. Not being successful in this at that place they came overland in a lumber wagon to Janesville. It was before the time of railroads in this section and Mr. and Mrs. Moses endured the hardships of the early settlers of this part of the state. During her residence of sixty-two years in this city, Mrs. Moses had many friends among the older residents of the city, many of whom have preceded her in death.

She leaves four children to mourn her loss: E. B. Moses of Lake Charles, La.; C. A. Moses, and Levi and Frank Moses all of this city; and two grandchildren, Mrs. Peter F. Bradley of Weston, Illinois, and Charles P. Moses of Otsa, Indiana. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

Mrs. Julia Pomranke, nee Ninko, died suddenly early Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. Zimmerman, 224 South Franklin street. She had been in rather feeble health of late and the cause of her death is ascribed to heart failure.

The deceased was born in Germany, Sept. 13, 1821, and came to this country a number of years ago settling in Janesville, which has been her home. She was of a kindly, retiring disposition which endeared her to all who knew her. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. M. Zimmerman, and Mrs. Ferdinand Schwank, both of this city. Several grandchildren and six great grandchildren also survive. Funeral services will be held at nine o'clock Tuesday morning from St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Elizabeth Davies Spence, who died this morning at her home, 1502 Pleasant street, occurred the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Davies Spence, wife of Bartholomew Spence. She was eighty-nine years of age and death came after a brief illness.
Elizabeth Davies was born in Brooklyn, Wales, British Islands, on October 2, 1822. In March, 1852, she was united in marriage to Bartholomew Spence at Marybone Church, London. Together they came to the United States in 1858 where they settled at first at Dunkirk, Dane county, Wisconsin. Later in the same year they moved to Janesville where they have since resided. From the beginning of her residence in Janesville the deceased was a loyal member of Trinity church, earnestly working and generously contributing toward its upbuilding. Her interesting continued active in the affairs of the church up to the day of her death. Besides her many friends who leaves a husband, and one son, John Spence of Chicago, and one daughter, Mrs. Hannah

Greene of Philadelphia. She is also survived by five grandchildren. In her immediate family she is the last of a family of eleven children. The funeral will be private and it is the earnest wish of the deceased that friends omit flowers.

Mrs. Eliza Monroe, passed away at her home, 65 South Franklin street, Sunday morning at half past eight, after a two week illness with pneumonia. The deceased was a resident of Janesville for over fifty years and was the widow of the late W. H. Monroe who died over a year ago.

Mrs. Monroe was born in the Isle of Cowles, England, in 1852, and removed to this country with her parents while a very small child. They came almost immediately to this city which has been her home since that time. Besides a large circle of friends, she leaves a daughter and one son, Mrs. C. M. Russell of Minneapolis, Minn., and William Monroe of this city; also one brother and one sister, Charles Viney and Mrs. Mary Mulvey of this city. Funeral services will be held from the home Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. T. D. Williams will officiate.

Mrs. Will Hinckley.
Mrs. Will Hinckley died at her home in Harvard, Ill., last Saturday night. Besides her husband and eight children of Harvard, she leaves three sisters: Mrs. Arthur Church, Mrs. J. Brown, and Mrs. Cook, all of this city. Remains will arrive tomorrow at 11:45 and will be taken direct to the Oak Hill chapel where services will be conducted by Rev. T. D. Williams.

HIGHWAY MATTERS FOR CITY FATHERS

Principal Affairs of Business at Council Meeting Tonight Will Be Street Improvements.

Street improvement matters and the allowing of the salary list of city officers for the month are the most important affairs of business to be transacted by the common council at its meeting at the city hall tonight. A short session in which half of the city will probably be quickly disposed of. The work on the improvement of Jackson, East and Wisconsin streets will be presented and the bonds of $1,361.50 and $235.21 for the work on Jackson and East streets, respectively. The petition of Nelson, proprietor of an electric theatre at 303 West Milwaukee street, to be allowed to place a sign in front of his place of business, will probably be passed upon by the city fathers, and the reappointment of John Benson as special policeman without pay will be settled.

RAILROAD IN LEGAL FIGHT FOR TWO DOLLAR FARE

Case is Brought in Missouri Court To Decide Whether Fare Can Be Collected From Passengers Standing.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE].
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 23.—A legal battle to decide whether persons who ride on cars, but do not get seats, shall pay fare was begun in the Court of Justice today, when a suit brought by the Pennsylvania Railroad company against Alton S. Miller, president of the Union Electric Light and Power Company of this city, came up for trial. The railroad seeks to recover from Mr. Miller $210, the amount of the railroad fare from Philadelphia to Belmar, N. J.

CALLS BIG FAMILIES CRIME

Dr. Howe Says Bearing of More Than Two Children Will Be Accrued Statutory Offense.

Chicago.—Large families of the kind privileged by former President Roosevelt, will in the future be regarded as criminal, according to Dr. J. D. Howe, who addressed the Austin Woman's club the other day on "Education."
"It will be a statutory crime for any woman to give birth to more than two children," was her prediction, which called forth a gasp of astonishment from all her hearers. This condition will exist, she said, when the people generally are educated on the conservation of health, so that the death rate will be brought to a minimum.

"The education of the future," said Dr. Howe, "will be more and more along lines that will teach us the principles of hygiene, and the death rate from disease, which at present is higher among human beings than among animals, will fall so low that it will be a statutory crime for any woman to give birth to more than two children."

"Education among women means the preservation of youth and beauty. Cleopatra was not only one of the most beautiful women the world has ever seen, but also one of the best educated. To her education was due her great charm for the rulers of the world of that day."

"The public believes that Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Sarah Bernhardt retain their youthful vigor by spending long hours in developing their limbs and in keeping their complexions fresh through exercise, but this conclusion is wrong. The secret of these women and of all women like them is that as they grow older they do not let their mental faculties lapse, but by studying long hours each day keep their bodies vigorous by keeping their minds fresh."

Association.

"The man on deck yonder who has been so sick is a baseball player."
"Doesn't seem to be enjoying himself."

"No," said it was too much like work. Every time the vessel pitched, he felt he wanted to make a home run."

AUTOMOBILE PARTY HAD CONSIDERABLE TROUBLE

Young People Who Went to Stoughton Had Trouble of Their Own on Return Trip to Edgerton.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE].
Edgerton, Wis., Jan. 22.—Two Edgerton young couples went to Stoughton, Sunday afternoon, by auto, expecting to return by six or seven o'clock. They made the out-going trip in safety, but the return trip was not so pleasant. They left Stoughton in good season and when several miles out the machine refused to go for lack of gasoline. The young ladies and gents found quarters at a farm house while the driver of the machine proceeded on foot to Stoughton after the necessary fuel. Being Sunday night, and a late hour at that, the gasoline was obtained with considerable difficulty and cost at the rate of $1.50 per gallon. It was midnight when they reached Edgerton.

"The condition of Mrs. William Barnes, who has been afflicted with paralysis for the past year or more, is anything but encouraging. A specialist was called in consultation with the attending physician, who discovered that she was suffering with a tumor, and while an operation is necessary he did not advise it, knowing that she was too weak to undergo the trying ordeal."

ONE PIECE IS RICHNESS

Hawkes' Cut Glass quite spoils a woman for other glass. Once under the Hawkes charm she will admit that she would rather own one piece of Hawkes' than a gaudy sideboard of not Hawkes.

HAWKES' CUT GLASS

Is the pure limpid "white" glass judges talk about. The cutting is done with wonderful boldness and skill. The designs are artistic to the last line.

We have some beautiful Hawkes creations—some very simple indeed, others of exquisite richness—all practical and irresistibly interesting.

Leipzig is a Publishing Center.

Leipzig is the largest publication center in the world. More books and periodicals are printed there than anywhere else, and more people are engaged in making and using printers' supplies than in London, New York, Berlin or Paris. Out of a total of 80,718 books that were published in the German empire last year, 11,219 were printed and issued in Leipzig, and 2,723 music books and orders came from England, France, Austria, and other countries, because the mechanical work can be done in Leipzig much cheaper than elsewhere. More than half of the transactions in books take place at the Leipzig book fair, which occurs every year at the jubilee, the first week in Easter, when booksellers and publishers from all parts of Germany assemble to compare and balance accounts and to make contracts for the next year.

Warming the Devil.
An almost incredible case of superstition is reported from Rhul, near Grosswardein, Hungary. The place has never before experienced an earthquake, but recently a series of violent shocks shook the neighborhood, some being so violent that the church bells rang. The villagers were greatly alarmed and consulted an old woman, a quack of the place, who declared that the shocks were the groans of the devil, who suffered cold and hunger. Thereupon the peasants threw a number of calves and goats into a chasm outside the village to appease the devil's hunger and set fire to the bishop's forest in the neighborhood to provide him with warmth. The quack and several peasants have been arrested.

The Pure Food Law

Secretary Wilson says: "One of the objects of the law is to inform the consumer of the presence of certain harmful drugs in medicines." The law requires that the amount of chloroform, opium, morphine, and other habit-forming drugs be stated on the label of each bottle. The manufacturers of Meritol Cough Remedy have always claimed that their remedy did not contain any of these drugs, and the truth of this claim is now fully proven, as no mention of them is made on the label. This remedy is not only one of the safest, but one of the best in use for coughs and colds. Its value has been proven beyond question during the many years it has been in general use. begin last spring with a two-acre lot and fourteen dollars in cash. He raised vegetables and small fruits and had a poultry yard. He worked from four o'clock in the morning till school time and afterwards and Saturdays he peddled fruits and vegetables of his own raising and others that he bought. He cleared more than three hundred dollars by Thanksgiving. The boy's experience demonstrates that it is not necessary to go to Florida or Texas to develop intensified farming.

OPEN AIR SCHOOLS.
 The open air school originated in Germany in 1901.

Providence, R. I., established the first open air school in America in January, 1908.

This year twenty-three American cities are supporting open air schools. No failure has yet been recorded.

Half a pound a week each is the average gain in weight of the children attending open air schools.

The initial cost of these schools is small.

An abandoned school house, ferry boats, roofs, tents and an old barn have been converted into open air schools.

Over fifty newspaper and magazine articles and one book have been written on the subject this year.

In open air schools pupils work less, play more, and progress faster than in ordinary schools.

"Double rations of air; double rations of food; half rations of work," is Grancher's formula for the regime of open air schools.

"We endorse open air schools which have been organized for the children of weak constitutions, and recommend that the number of such schools be increased."—Resolutions adopted by the Rhode Island Institute of Instruction, October 29, 1910.—Dept. of Hygiene, Russell Sage Foundation.

With 450,000,000 acres of spruce timber capable of supplying ten tons of wood pulp to the acre, lying just across the line in Canada, it is not likely that the world will soon suffer from a paper famine. It is estimated that at the present rate of consumption the Canadian supply of wood pulp will last for five thousand years.

This country can afford to make reciprocal terms with the country which is only separated by an imaginary line.

Reports from 365 counties in the United States show that in 1909 more than 150,000 boys and girls in elementary schools were members of clubs engaged in contests in growing better corn, potatoes, cotton, and other staple products, and in cooking and sewing.

The Aldrich currency and banking plan is received with general favor, even by Wall Street interests. It will doubtless be pigeon-holed until the next session of congress, as the present session is not giving much attention to business.

J. A. McCurdy, an enthusiastic aeronaut, will attempt to fly from Key West to Cuba tomorrow. The distance is 100 miles, and if the trial is a success, a passenger service may be established.

"Orange county, Kansas, complains that there is not a man teacher in the county. They might try the experiment of paying their teachers as much as is paid to common hog-carriers,"—Kansas City Star.

The schools of Waupaca county will this year hold contests in declamations, spelling, arithmetic, the making rugs. This is doubtless the result of Supt. Cary's work along the lines of practical education.

A student in the State University of Kansas runs a dairy supplied by three cows which he brought along from the farm to help pay his way through school.

The cold storage houses are heavily overstocked on eggs and butter, because the people are practicing economy. There's nothing like economy to reduce the cost of living.

The new democratic house will attempt to revise the tariff, one schedule at a time, without the aid of a commission.

 By WALT MASON.

O bring along your ice and snow, and let rippling breezes blow, as in the good old days: I like my winter cold and bleak, with stormy winds that rave and shriek and swirl and swirl and swirl.

WINTER When I was young, old Winter came in early fall, and played the game till some time in July; he wore his snowdrifts in his hair, and made the feathers fly. He came a lanky, nifty sight, who painted things by day and night, and read the riot act; and people gloried in the snow, and children mourned to see him go, when his backbones was cracked.

But Winter nowadays is kind, and ladylike and quite refined, a thing of bows and smiles; he comes knocking at your door, and makes a healthy man so sore he roasts the whole blizzard of works. If Winter appears a little frost he thinks his reputation's lost; his pardon he entreats; he tries to fix things with a thaw, and staid around and wags his jaw and chuckles the rag and bleats. All too often his ate he's grown; he has roared and frozen through, his manners loud and rude; he wears a shirtwaist made of rags, and at our doors he wags his jaws. Dame Nature's splendid duds, O, send along your ice and snow, and let the dragons blizzards blow, and whoop to beat the band! The winters

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE HARD JOB.
 For the sake of his lesson let me retell a newspaper story.

At the age of thirty a young man in New York state was a carpenter earning about $2 a day. He was not a good carpenter, having no talent for tools.

There was little prospect of getting up to be a boss carpenter or contractor. And his family was growing.

After much thought about his future he went to a successful man for advice.

"Do something else," said the adviser—"something different. It is a hard job it will make you determined to do it. It will develop the character that will bring success."

"Why not study stenography? Good shorthand reporters are scarce, and they get good pay."

"But I lack education."

"Get it, then," said the man.

The carpenter talked the matter over with his wife and decided. He began by studying spelling. It was hard work, but—

Because he was trying to do a hard job than he had ever tried before it gave him courage.

He became a very good speller and then bought some books on stenography.

Then he needed a teacher and saved money to hire one.

Finally, when he had thoroughly learned the symbols that stand for words, in the evenings after his day's work he would have his wife read speeches to him which he would practice taking down in shorthand.

The time came when he could quit his carpentering and go into a lawyer's office. And at the end of a year his ability secured for him a court reporting position.

Today this man has six or seven men working for him and is making several thousand dollars a year as a public stenographer.

The story is worth while because it is not a tale of a struggling genius, but a record of the determination of an average man who by hard work lifted himself out of a rut.

Indeed, there is no genius save the genius for hard work.

He who looks for an easy job is an easy man. He who selects the big job becomes the strong man.

It is the hard job that puts iron into a man's bones, convolutions into his gray matter and fiber into his soul.

BEATS LONG FLIGHT RECORD

AVIATOR PARMALEE STAYS UP OVER 3 1/2 HOURS.

Is Given Wild Ovation by 25,000 People—Cold Caused Flyer to Descend.

San Francisco, Jan. 23.—A crowd of 25,000 cheering spectators saw a new American endurance record in aviation set when Phillip O. Parmelee remained aloft in a Wright biplane for 3 hours 39 minutes and 49.15 seconds.

When Parmelee finally alighted after his long flight over Seldridge field the enthusiasm of the throng was such that it threatened to overwhelm the aviator and his machine.

Eugene B. Ely, the Curtiss aviator who last Thursday sailed through the air to the deck of the cruiser Pennsylvania and back, and those nearest Parmelee, seized him, hoisted him on their shoulders and bore him in triumph to a stand in the middle of the field, where Gen. Tanker H. Bliss, other army officers and a host of women crowded about to extend congratulations.

"I could have remained up longer," said Parmelee, "but my seat grew so hard and my hands and feet so numb with the cold that I decided to come down after alighting the American record."

The long flight was uneventful. The best previous endurance performance was that of A. L. Welsh, made at St. Louis October 11, 1910, in a Wright biplane. He established a record of 3 hours 11 minutes and 55 seconds.

Wonderful iceberg.

One of the biggest icebergs seen for years near ocean liners is told about by the skipper of the Oravia. He saw it in the south Atlantic, passing Falkland islands. "The night was cloudy. There was a cutting wind and the temperature of the sea was down to 33 degrees when the great iceberg came into view—a huge mass five hundred feet high, partly covered with mist, a long, shelving shore of ice, with the sea breaking upon it as upon a wide, desolate beach. When the moon appeared the sight was one never to be forgotten. We gazed upon what seemed

REALLY Painless Dentistry

"Did you ever before have a tooth extracted really without pain?" said I to the pleased patient as she was leaving the office. "NEVER!! BEFORE," she said. And that's the common thing with me every day.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Won the Contest: Mrs. H. Huhler, 15 South 11th street, was the winner of a railroad ticket to Cross "S" ranch and return through her guess of 7,800 the number of beans in a jar containing 7,821 beans. Geo. A. Miller, 11 E. Beloit, also guessed 7,800, and decision was rendered by lot.

One Drunk: Louis Olson's attempt to become better acquainted with "wet goods," resulted in his arrest and appearance in court this morning for drunkenness. "I had a bottle and I ain't used to it," said Olson in explanation. The man's home is in Beloit where he is employed as a painter in the Fairbanks-Morse plant. He paid a fine of $3 and costs.

Switchman Was Hurt: Robert Taggart, a switchman employed by the Northwestern railroad had a gash about one and a half inches long cut above an eye while at work in the new yards last Saturday night. Taggart was in between the cars when his foot slipped on the ice and threw his head against the end of the car. He was brought to the city and a physician dressed his injuries.

False Fire Alarm: Someone passing by the Park hotel late last Saturday afternoon and seeing sparks emitting from the chimney, turned in an alarm of fire. L. C. Brower was surprised when the department arrived some minutes later and informed them their services were not needed, the fire being due to the burning of some easily combustible rubbish.

JANESVILLE SHOW ONE OF LARGEST

HELD IN THE WEST THIS YEAR—CHICAGO AND KANSAS CITY THE OTHER TWO BIG EVENTS.

THE ENTRY LIST WAS 1146

Southern Wisconsin Poultry and Pet Stock Association Held Most Successful Exhibit Last Week.

It may be interesting to note that the exhibit held last week by the Southern Wisconsin Poultry and Pet Stock association, was the third largest held in the west this season. The shows at Chicago and Kansas City were the other two big events. The Janesville exhibit was larger in number and quality of fowls than the one held in Milwaukee a few weeks ago and heralded throughout the press of the state as the largest and best show ever held in Wisconsin, and exceeded the Madison show of two weeks ago by several hundred entries. The figures in the secretary's office show that fully thirty-five hundred persons visited the show during the week, the receipts being in the neighborhood of $255. The total number of entries were 1,146, and it taxed both the accommodations provided by the association and the capacity of the hall, to show them properly. When it is considered that the show of a year ago had only 600 fowls exhibited and the growth was almost double, the magnitude of the recent exhibition can be appreciated.

Yesterday was shipping day. All the morning the officers of the association with a force of workmen were busy preparing the birds for shipment to their owners; taking apart the knock-down-coups which the association had purchased and preparing the awards and markings for the owners. It was a busy scene full of interest even to the layman who did not know one breed of chickens from another.

The show was a success in every way. In numbers of entries, in attendance and in the quality of the exhibits. The officers are most gratified with the results and feel confident that the Nineteen Twelve show will equal that of Chicago, held in December, in numbers, so widespread will the results of the recent display become known among chicken men. Already a ribbon from the Janesville show stands for a good deal.

It is an interesting fact that birds that took prizes at other shows did not receive a place at the Janesville one, and birds which were first or second at Chicago, Milwaukee, Broadhead and elsewhere, received third and fourth here. This speaks well for the local show's quality of birds exhibited and will have its effect upon future entry lists.

BICKNELL MACHINE SHOP BURGLARIZED

Robbers Entered Through Window and Secured About $20 Worth of Tools Saturday or Sunday Night.

Sometime between Saturday night and this morning the machine shop of the Bicknell Manufacturing & Supply Company on North River street was burglarized and tools valued at thirty-five dollars were taken. A window in the shop was taken out, the lock removed, and the window pushed up. The police are working on a case and certain persons are said to be under suspicion. The tools were marked and can be easily identified and if the clues the police now have fall, cards will be sent to the authorities in nearby cities. As a last resort this method of recovering the stolen property is practically certain.

The articles taken were all fine mechanic's tools, such as rules, pliers, hammers and other special tools. The work was evidently done by someone familiar with the shop. Up to a late hour this afternoon no arrests had been made.

MAN IDENTIFIED AS ROBBER BY A NUN

Sister at St. Joseph's Convent Says Man Arrested in Milwaukee Broke Open Poor Box Here.

Robert Dorn, alias Robert Johnson, under arrest in Milwaukee who is alleged to have made several robberies there, was positively identified as the man who robbed the poor box at St. Patrick's church over a year ago by Sister Augustine of St. Joseph's convent from a picture of the man sent to Chief of Police Appleby by the Milwaukee authorities. The chief immediately sent word to the Milwaukee police that the man had been identified and it is possible that he may be re-arrested on his release from prison for the crimes in Milwaukee, to be tried here.

(The identification of the man clears up the mystery of the robbery and removes suspicion from any who it is thought might have been connected with it. It also settles the question of the robbery of the poor box at St. Mary's Church on the same night.)

The robberies were committed about Christmas time and it is supposed contained large sums of money. The sister, who identified the man, entered the lock on the box and heard the noise, but her suspicions were quieted when she found him kneeling before the altar. Later the robbery was discovered and reported but the robber had escaped.

"We could have asked for nothing more than to catch the thief before he left town," said Chief of Police Appleby this morning with regard to the identification of the man.

Mrs. Sylvester Morgan Has Serious Accident on Sinclair Street on Saturday Evening.

Mrs. Sylvester Morgan, aged 80, an old resident of this city, slipped on the icy street in front of the residence of Miss Angie M. King, 17 Sinclair street, Saturday evening at 6:30, and sustained a severe injury to her right knee. She was taken into the residence of Miss King where she has been forced to remain ever since the accident, under the care of a trained nurse and Mrs. Penber and Nuzum. It is not certain whether or not the bone is broken, but the ligaments are so torn as to make it necessary for Mrs. Morgan to be confined to her bed and to cause her severe pain. She was walking in the road at the time she fell and in some way slipped and doubled her right leg in under her. No other injuries were received and this fact is particularly fortunate considering the advanced age of Mrs. Morgan.

Mrs. Morgan is in her 84th year and is ill at present at Whitewater.

MISS BOSTWICK IS TO WED S. B. ECHLIN

Announcement of Their Engagement Made on Saturday Last at a Five O'clock Tea.

On Saturday afternoon, at a five o'clock tea, given at the residence of Mrs. J. M. Bostwick, 521 Court street, the engagement of her daughter, Miss Harriet Bostwick, to Samuel B. Echlin, was announced. Mrs. Bostwick being unable to be present, had written the announcement, which was read by her eldest daughter, Mrs. Norman L. Carlo, to the invited guests.

The engagement is of exceptional interest to Janesville society, both Miss Bostwick and Mr. Echlin being most popular. Miss Bostwick is a member of the Delta Gamma society, and a former student at the university, graduating with the class of 1901, and has been prominent in the social life of the city. Mr. Echlin is treasurer of the Bassett & Echlin company and is also a former university student, being a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. While the date of the wedding has not been set as yet, it will undoubtedly take place during the coming summer.

The announcement of the engagement came as a surprise to their many friends, the five o'clock tea Saturday having been most carefully planned, intimate friends of Miss Bostwick being the invited guests. The dining room was most tastefully decorated for the occasion, the color scheme in pink, being carried out. Pink roses and maiden hair ferns formed an attractive centerpiece, the candles being shaded with dainty pink shades. Pink wisteria blossoms were suspended from the ceiling and the walls were covered with trailing ivy vines.

The evening was spent at bridge, Miss Mae Bostwick winning the high score prize and Miss Lucinda Whitton the low score one.

CLINTON VISITED BY THE ROBBERS?

Men Who Broke Into Schoolhouses Here Thought Responsible for Burglaries in Village.

Did the same persons who broke into the Grant and Garfield schools in this city on Friday night, intent on burglary, visit the village of Clinton where three places were entered on Saturday night? That both crimes were committed by the same robbers is the belief of H. A. Moehlempf, a banker of Clinton, in a telephone message to Chief of Police George Appleby. The school house in the village, where a small safe is kept, was entered and the safe opened by breaking off the knob and pushing back the bolt. The teachers' desks were ransacked much the same as in Janesville, and two dollars in change was secured. The officers at the elevator and of the Creamery Supply company yielded the burghers no reward for their labors.

Cross "S" Ranch beans were contained in the jar voted on at the poultry show. Mrs. R. Buhler, 15 South High street, wins the free ticket to Cross "S" Ranch and return.

George A. Miller of Beloit, Wisconsin, was the runner up, and the winner was determined by lot per report of committee herewith.

Report of Committee

This is to certify that 7821 is the Number of Beans in the jar for the Cross "S" Ranch contest. The committee find that Mrs. R. Buhler, No. 15 South High St., Janesville, Wis., guess was 7800. George A. Miller of Beloit, Wis., guess was the same, constituting a tie, and the winner was decided by lot. Mrs. Buhler was declared the winner.

(Signed)

A. E. Bingham,
H. H. Bliss,
P. J. Mount, Committee.

Remember our next excursion to Cross "S" Ranch leaves Janesville Tuesday, February 7th at 7:20 A. M. The 500 or more who voted on Cross "S" Ranch beans have had an opportunity of looking over the Cross "S" Ranch exhibit at the Poultry Show last week and many of them have received literature pertaining to our ranch. To all those who voted, and others who are interested in Southwest Texas and Cross "S" Ranch, we make the following proposition.

Free Railroad Ticket to Cross "S" Ranch and Return

We invite farmers, business men, salaried men and wage earners of Southern Wisconsin to join our excursion leaving on February 7th.

We invite you to make a personal investigation of Cross "S" Ranch and ascertain on behalf of yourself or yourself and friends, that all we say in regard to the property is true. We guarantee that if you become interested in Cross "S" Ranch property we will refund to you the price of your railroad ticket there and back, which only costs $31.20.

If you leave on our February 7th excursion you will go at a time of year when the Sunny South is at the height of its winter glory, and you will visit beautiful San Antonio, the largest city in Texas, and the Great Winter Play Ground of the South.

Those who are interested in poultry will find that they can raise their fowls every month in the year, and have no screen feed to buy, as alfalfa and other products make the finest feed in the world.

Do you realize that a man has no fuel to buy, that the saving on his coal bills alone will keep his family for several months, and you have no cellar to build beneath your house as you can raise your table supplies in your own garden at all times of the year.

Do you realize that you will live in a climate which outrivals Southern California, and do you realize that in a few years Cross "S" Ranch farms will be worth as much as land is selling for in Southern California, where from $1000 to $2000 per acre is easily obtained.

Don't Put Off Visiting the Ranch Any Longer

Get there in time to get in a winter crop which will bring you a cash income between now and May 1st, and if properly farmed will bring you enough revenue during the next year to pay for your farm.

We make the statement that after a man has made his first payment on his farm, the revenue to be obtained therefrom will keep up his payments from year to year and provide handsomely for himself and family.

Cross "S" Ranch lands can now be bought for $60 an acre for the unimproved land and $100 an acre for the land with perpetual water.

Land is worth what it will produce and a profit of from $100 to $300 per acre a year is the general result.

We reproduce herewith a portion of an article which appeared in the Chicago Sunday Tribune yesterday, showing what can be produced and earned from figs and other products.

Cross "S" Ranch land has been pronounced by experts to be the finest fig soil in the United States and the man who has a three, five or ten acre fig orchard, which will reach its maximum in from three to four years, will have an income producer for life that will make him absolutely independent.

EXTRACT FROM ARTICLE IN CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE JANUARY 22ND.

"A growing industry in Texas is that of the fig. Figs, it has been learned, will grow well and produce heavily.

There are many opportunities in this direction, especially as fig trees need not be placed in regular orchard rows but may be scattered here and there about the farm. Fig trees five years old often yield four hundred pounds of fruit which may be dried and preserved at a profit of about $30 per tree.

Establishment of canning factories will make fig culture a valuable asset. The fig practically takes care of itself.

Where nature has given ten months of warm sunshine above, many feet of fertile soil on the earth and an endless supply of artesian water below. For what other section has Nature done so much?

DEMAND FOR ONIONS.

The Creole White Bermuda and Crystal Wax Onions are grown as successfully, if not more, than in other southern localities. They mature in April and the demand has always been unlimited. $200 an acre net is not a surprising return, and larger returns frequently are made when the greatest care has been given to the crop. The White Bermuda Onion, which is extensively grown, has produced as much as 37,000 pounds to the acre.

MELON CROP IMPORTANT.

The Melon crop is an important one and experiments with California Apricots and Cherries have proved successful.

There is practically no limit to fruit culture in Texas. Any part of the state is adapted to cultivation of certain fruits thence growing through the widest range being peaches, plums, apricots, prunes, persimmons, nectarines, grapes and pears.

The development of the Orange, which is proving successful, also is to add another source of successful income to the Texas farmer.

Strawberry picking and shipping begins about the middle of January and not later than February 15th in any part of Southwest Texas, and the early berries command fancy prices in Northern markets. The shipping season lasts about three months.

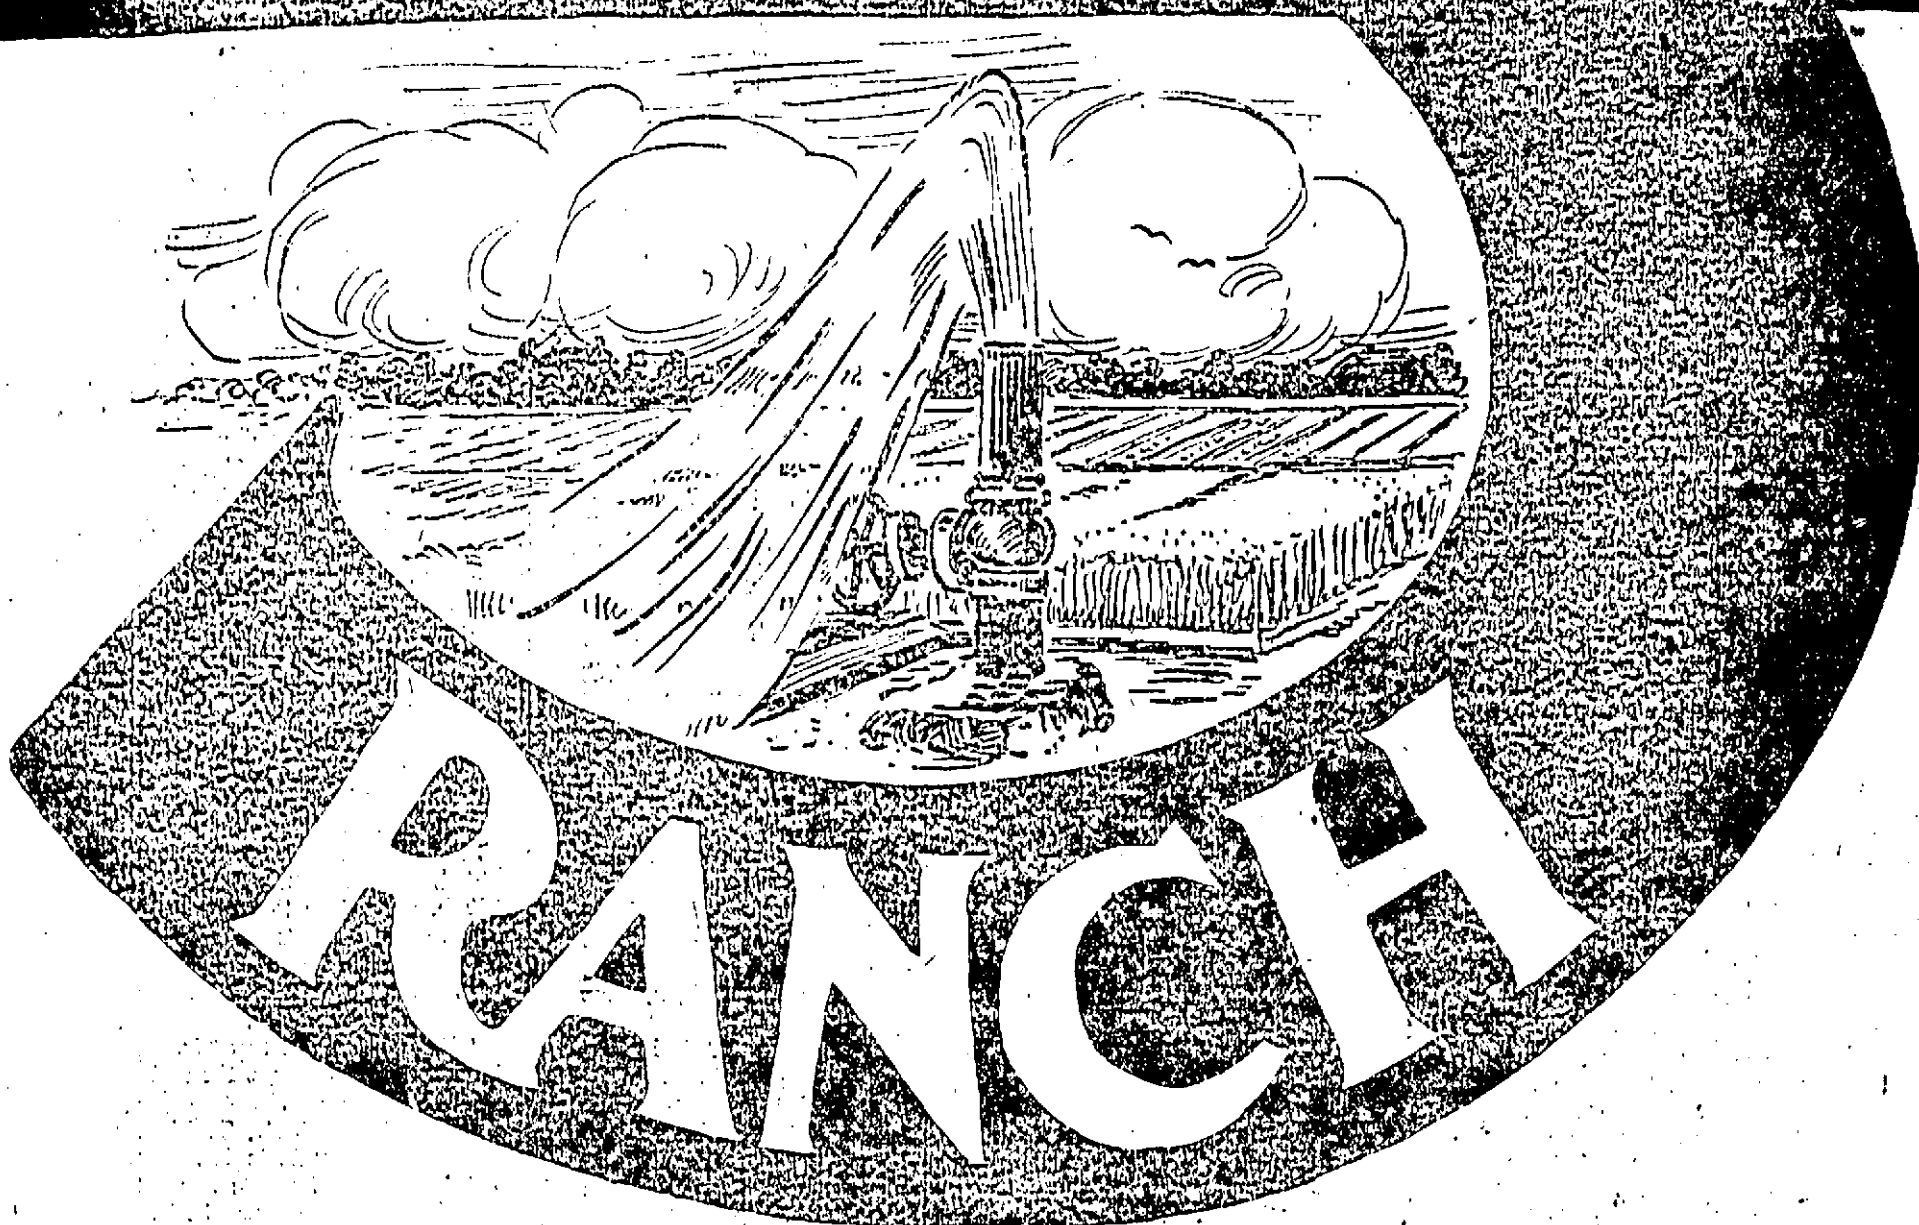

Long summers of growing weather and mild winters permit of farming practically twelve months in the year. This gives the grower unusual opportunity for crop rotation and this with the natural richness of the plains removes largely any tendency of the soil to run out.

On Cauliflower, which carefully cultivated produces generously, a farmer near Beeville, Texas, obtained $300 from one acre, the land being irrigated with the output from a three-inch well.

Cauliflower sown early in July, set out in August, and can be marketed the latter part of December.

Cabbages are cultivated extensively. In the Corpus Christi last winter $100,000 worth of this vegetable was disposed of by the growers. They are planted in September.

The Tomato is another crop that comes close to heading the list for profit. It has been demonstrated beyond doubt that the tomato yields remarkably. It begins to ripen early in May and it once finds a ready market and a fancy price in the Texas markets and throughout the North. Small white Navy Beans make two crops a year and yield abundantly."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

I'M GOING to make you acquainted with two women whom I know, and tell you a little poem that I love today.

The connection and comment I leave to you.
The first woman is an old acquaintance of mine. She lives in a beautiful home not far from mine. She has been married about twenty years but has no children. They say she is glad because she likes children. Sometimes they say more than that. The empty home is the disappointment of her husband's life. He has a more than ample income and is always urging her to adopt some "lonely baby," but she absolutely refuses.

Christmas saying that she was not going to try any more—it wasn't any use.

The other woman, whom I met in the course of my newspaper work two years ago, is a woman about whom the tongue of rumor is continually saying cruel things. How much is true, I don't know. I don't want to know. What I do know is this: She supports her father and mother and not only supports them with money but with love.

I don't think she ever said an unkind word about anybody or passed a beggar by without giving. There is a girl in the city who tells this story about her. She, the young girl, came to the city looking for work, spent her savings without getting it and on Thanksgiving day was wandering the streets penniless. She met this woman, whom she knew slightly. The woman on finding out her trouble insisted on lending her five dollars and later found her work. Subsequently the girl discovered, through very roundabout channels, that the five dollars was not only the woman's last cent, but a very treasured pocketpiece which, even in her own worst extremity, she had never parted with.

There is a fine young man in our community with a splendid wife and baby and an ideal home, who owes everything to this woman. She found him a desperate young fool ready for any vice. She saw the worth in him, and helped him find himself. And then when he would have married her in gratitude, she refused because she loved him too well.

I don't believe that anyone ever suffered any more than she did at this time, and yet through it all, she kept her fine cheerfulness and her marvelous interest in other people's needs, which makes her unique in a world filled with people saddening the earth with their troubles.

The poem is by Jonquil Miller. Perhaps you already know it and love it as I do.

In men whom men pronounce divine,
I find so much of sin and blot;
In men who men denounce as ill
I find so much of goodness still.
I hesitate to draw the line Between the two, when God has not.

TO PLAY FOR EVERY PEOPLE IN THE WORLD HER AIM.

Mrs. Hilda Gilbert, author and dramatist of California, who is to leave New York on February 1 with $200 in cash and a fund of resources upon which to draw for three square meals a day. She will be accompanied by her maid and will go with a guitar and mandolin. It is Mrs. Gilbert's aim to play before every people on the globe before she returns.
It is expected two years will be taken up in this travel, and her ambition is to return with a sum of money equal to that with which she will start out.

Soup Making.

Of the making of soups there is no end, and the variety is legion. Anything may be used in the soup pot from "fish flesh to good red herring."

The following are some recipes that are unusual:

Turkey Soup.—Put into a soup kettle the bones and trimmings of a cold roast turkey, with a quarter of a pound of lean ham. Cover with cold water, add a chopped onion, a stalk of celery, a tablespoonful of powdered herbs, and pepper and salt to season. Simmer until the meat is in shreds; strain, reheat, add half a can of corn, and a little of the turkey stuffing.

Ham-Bone Soup.—Cover a ham bone with cold water, add two cupsful of split peas, and simmer until the peas are thoroughly cooked, adding more water if necessary. Take out the bone, rub through a sieve, reheat, season to taste, and serve with slices of bread, fried.

Beef and Veal Soup.—Cut fine three pounds of lean beef and two pounds of the round of veal. Fry in butter, with a sliced onion, cover with cold water and simmer for three hours. Add one carrot, four cloves, two bay-leaves and a stalk of celery. Simmer an hour longer, strain and reheat. Beat the whites of two eggs with half a cupful of cold water; pour into the soup and serve as soon as hot.

Vegetable Soup.—Cut into dice two carrots, a quarter of a small cabbage, half a turnip, half an onion, a potato and two stalks of celery. Fry in butter; add six cupsful of water or stock, and salt and pepper to season. Simmer for half an hour. Serve very hot with croutons.

Apple Soup.—Cook eight apples soft in as little water as possible. Add sugar to taste and press through a sieve. Flavor with lemon juice and nutmeg, and thicken with a tablespoonful of cornstarch rubbed smooth in a little cold water. When cool, add two cupsful of cider.

THE MASQUERADE.

"Is it not wonderful to see how few sins are done flinty, fairly, blankly as sins? Covetousness dresses itself in the decent robes of prudence; profligacy goes garbed as generosity; they all masquerade through society, and trap the souls of men. What if it came—the Spirit of Truth—and wiped out every false name and wrote up every true one?" asked Phillips Brooks.

True it is that few sins are ever deliberately committed. Most of them are the result of an impulse that propels like the motor of a boat or vehicle, and when passion or anything else equally as strong sits at the wheel and all sorts of evils are likely to result. Few men who have shined in any way have deliberately planned to do wrong. When they have done so one finds that they usually are moral perverts anyway and that the evil impulse in them was the strongest thing in their natures.

Few men who have looted banks or other financial institutions have deliberately planned their robberies. First there has come the desire to possess—covetousness. An impulse to use a little of the bank's money in order to increase his income by speculation, overcomes the trusted man who has handled money for years without allowing a single penny to stick to his fingers. Then more helping until one day the world is startled by the report of another defalcation.

Another man becomes a prodigal through a mistaken notion of generosity. He gets a distorted idea of the one without having any notion of the other and so in time he comes to want and beggary.

And so all through society we find honest folk wearing masks of which they but behold themselves as others see them. The ambitious social leader, because she envies the success of another, does the reprehensible thing and continues to do it until some day the mask is ruthlessly torn away.

The man in business looks longingly towards the success of a rival and he, too, does the reprehensible thing and keeps on repeating it until one day the mask is torn away and he, too, stands revealed in his true aspect. The veneer of falsehood lies so thickly over people and their habits that one sometimes wonders at the survival of truth and yet truth does live, for truth is immortal. The other is perishable. It must flee away the moment the first beam from the glowing presence of the Spirit of Truth touches it.

Only truth survives. Falsehood, death and all other evils must be gathered together and taken away just as we are told that in the end the earth will be gathered up and like a scroll rolled up and made to disappear from the sight of men. As the world grows older and better, sham begins to disappear and the universal masquerade draws nearer to its close.

Baked Carrots.

These are very nice and very nourishing, simple and inexpensive. Take 3 or 4 good-sized carrots and cut into dice; put over a moderate fire in slightly salted water and simmer gently (don't boil hard) until very tender; drain off all the water, then mash fine and season with salt, pepper and a little butter; turn into a deep pudding dish and cover with fine cracker or bread crumbs; sprinkle a little salt and a dust of pepper over and 3 or 4 tiny bits of butter; put into a good oven and bake until the crumbs are a delicate brown; serve hot.

To Utilize Pieces of Soap.

Small pieces of toilet soap should be saved from the soap dishes, and when a sufficient quantity has been collected it should be cut into shavings and dissolved in boiling water. Measure the soap, and to each cupful put two cupsful of water. When the soap is dissolved, add enough fine oatmeal to make a stiff batter. The mixture is then turned into molds, and when dry makes an excellent soap for the skin.

Removing Candle Grease.

When candle grease drops usually the first thought is to scrape it off with a knife, so the grease will not harden, but if a heated knife is used the removal of grease will be quick and thorough.

Take off as much grease as will come the first time, then scrape off the rest with a hot knife. Wipe the knife each time it is lifted from the grease spot.

This is better than the hot iron and blotter process, and often more convenient.

Dumplings.

Two cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, a little salt. Sift three times. Mix with milk. Put into boiling stew. Cover the kettle with a white cloth, then put on the cover and hold it down with weights to keep out the air. Allow 20 minutes of hard boiling. Take them up and serve immediately. They should be kept lively all the way through.

The Skin and Not the Blood.
Until recently it has been a generally accepted proposition that eczema was a disease of the blood, and that in order to cure it, the blood must be purified and enriched by internal remedies. Careful experiments and scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is purely a skin disease, and curable through the skin alone. A great majority of persons afflicted with eczema have no other ailment, which is accepted as positive proof that it is purely a skin disease. Having established this fact, the chemists of the American Drug and Press Association set about to compound a prescription that would successfully cope with this disease, and after much investigating brought out Meritol Eczema Remedy, the effect of which is marvelous. If you are afflicted with this loathsome disease, do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. You will be surprised at its prompt action, its soothing effect and its permanent results. HONOR MEMORY OF LATE DEACON

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR J. T. WRIGHT AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH SUNDAY.

HIS PERSONALITY A POWER

Was the Tribute Paid Him by the Pastor, Dr. David Beaton, in Morning Session.

Honor to the memory of the late Josiah T. Wright was paid at the morning service of the Congregational church Sunday. In his sermon Rev. David Beaton paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Wright, saying: "There was one man whom I knew thirty-five years ago who was the embodiment of what a true Christian should be. He was gentle, generous, fair in all his dealings and true to his highest ideals. I am glad that I can associate the memory of that man with the memory of the late departed. The personality of such men is the greatest force in life."

"Reliability in Religion," was the subject of the sermon and the texts were chosen from the fourth chapter of the Gospel of John, forty-second verse and the twenty-fifth verse of the ninth chapter of the same gospel. "A friend of modern times," said Dr. Beaton, "is a character of mind described as looking for the real thought underlying things. Writers in essays, poetry and the drama are characterized by their intensity of thought hereafter only accredited to reformers, preachers and the like. This is anything but a frivolous age. We have lots of frivolous people but they are not the moving power of the age."

The character of the age in business is intensity. What is the meaning of the death of Paul Morton, one of the great men of our day? Arterial sclerosis, the hardening of the arteries, was the cause the doctors gave for his death, but that means the candle has burned at both ends. We are wasting the candle of life in the intensity of life.

One of the things men will not stand is a sham. We are put in a world where we have to work to eat and eat to work. The question is whether we are dealing with these things as real.

Now when we come to consider the Christian faith, we must consider, is that faith real? Anyone whose ideas are not based on the facts of life has not an imagination but a hallucination. The senses and the intellect are the basis of all reality. Some say that the senses and intellect are all reality, but they are not, any more than the glass and lead in the stained glass window are all that go to make up the window. You must consider there the artist who designed and painted the window and whose brain brought about its construction. This mind has the intellect and imagination and the conscience. Religion takes the actual facts of life and the ideals and doubles them for the soul, for character and for the Christian life.

A photograph of a friend may show exactly all the features of his face and you would say, "That is a good photograph." But compare the photograph with the work of some portrait painter and see how insignificant the photo seems. The artist not only shows the proportionate lines, but reveals the soul of the man. That is the difference between the physical fact and the physical fact interpreted by the mind.

What then is the test of reality to you of religion? The test I would give is, Would it work?

The religion of a man goes into his life in the shape of force, of character or power and changes the man who was a waster of life into a power. Christianity transforms a man's soul and it works.

In the time of Jesus one of the great Chieftains sat on the throne of the Roman empire. If anyone had asked the greatest power of the times, the reply would have been Caesar. Yet today Caesar and his throne are only of antiquarian interest.

There was another great man at that time in the person of a despised Jew, thrown into prison in Rome. He had no money, no clothes besides those he wore, no friends, but in him was a great thing—a great spirit of conviction. Yet the spirit of Paul has come down through hundreds of years, doing work, that is a reality which will come into your life and mine and will be felt by your children and your children's children, and which was manifest in the life of our beloved Deacon Wright.

CASING WEATHER STARTS ACTIVITY

Eighty Per Cent Of Tobacco Crop In Vicinity of Stoughton Is Being Prepared For Delivery.

Stoughton, Wis., Jan. 23.—Taking advantage of the first case weather of the season several hundred farmers living in the vicinity worked all night Friday casing their crop of tobacco. Hundreds worked until midnight and as large a number toiled all night, assisted by their wives, children and hired help. Case weather is mainly secured before the holidays and this year it is unusually late. Anxious to get hands on money and realize on their work of last summer they are not slow to get the important work of casing done. Deliveries will be made at this point in a week. About 80 per cent of the crop was taken down Friday.

In the vicinity of Orfordville practically all tobacco has been cased. The American Clear Company, the largest buyer in this locality, has arranged to receive at Orfordville on Thursday. Receiving at Stoughton will start Jan. 30, by The American and by Halverson & Hitters, who have contracted for 150 acres.

No tobacco is down in the vicinity of Port Keno.

BOILED CORN MEAL.

Corn is the cheapest food. It is important that it be fresh; pelagra is caused by spoiled corn food. It keeps best on the cob in a dry place and can be ground through a common grater, care being taken not to include any part of the cob. It is best boiled for ten minutes and finished in the fireless cooker. Corn meal porridge should be made thick, and by children should be eaten with cream, after cooling and hardening as much as possible. One-fourth rye flour can be added for bread making.

POULTRY

TWELVE-DOLLAR HEN HOUSE

Servicable Shelter Is Constructed Out of Sod, Straw, Corn Fodder and Earth.

What results would you expect from 75 hens wintered in a coop of this cost? I had 75 May-hatched pullets in winter, says a writer in Rural New Yorker. I built a coop 12x18 feet, inside measurement. The material was sod for the sides; the roof was straw, covered with corn fodder; the floor, Nature's deodorizer, natural earth. I first selected a well sheltered location, then proceeded by setting

three crotches, each crotch set three feet deep. This for the peak of my roof. Next I set ordinary six-foot fence posts on sides four feet apart, two feet deep, leaving sides of coop four feet high, plenty high enough for sides of any coop. Then I spiked poles on to those fence posts on top, and nailed on small poles on side posts; laid poles in those center crotches, then laid poles from post plate to crotch poles for rafters, and my frame was complete. I put in a window frame of plank on south side 2x8 feet, covered same with muslin curtain (no glass); put door in east end. I cut sod and sodded up sides; put a little brush crosswise for rafter poles, covered with straw and shingled with corn fodder. The foundation of my coop is raised slightly so water runs away from it, which is very important. So my labor and all would amount to about $12. I put pullets in coop in December and they soon began laying. In January, February, March and April I averaged close to five dozen eggs per day. My income was a little better than one dollar per day, clear of feed; and they have continued laying well all summer till molting this fall. Now they are through the molt and are going right into the egg producing business again.

HANGING ROOST FOR CHICKS

Suspended From Ceiling By Means of Wires They Are Convenient in Cleaning Houses.

It is often convenient to have roosts hung from the ceiling of the poultry house in order to facilitate cleaning. In the style illustrated herewith, the roosts themselves are laid on a frame as shown, says Farm and Home. At each end the roosts are notched so as to fit in notches on the two poles and thus prevent slipping. The whole thing is hung by four stout wires from the center of the pen so as to be within 2 feet of the floor; or it may be hung toward one corner. In this case, at least 2 feet should be allowed between the frame and the wall so the attendant can easily walk all around. For cleaning, the roosts may be disconnected and carried out of doors. Preferably also, the poles should rest in loops of the wire, so that the whole thing may be removed without difficulty.

Hanging Roost.

POULTRY NOTES

A load of coarse sand is good for the chickens.

Be sure the houses are all free from flies and filth.

If you want your hens to lay during the cold months they must be given food rich in egg material.

Cures of poultry troubles lie in preventing sickness in the flock and not in curing the disease or disorder.

Hens fed on one kind of grain exclusively will not lay as satisfactorily as those that have been fed a variety of grains.

Onto make an excellent grain for laying hens. They furnish the essential food element without increasing the fat on the hen.

Give the hens good feed, clean water, a good dust bath and clean, airy, comfortable quarters, and the egg supply is reasonably certain.

Separate the cockerels from the pullets. They are of no earthly use, but on the contrary do harm. They should be castrated or sent to market.

Alfalfa hay, if cut in the bloom, is fine for chickens to pick over during the winter months. They will get more at less cost from ground alfalfa.

If your chicken-house faces north, board up the openings and transfer them to the south side and make them big enough to allow the sunshine to feed the floor.

Too True.
People who try to impress you with their wealth usually find it difficult to make both ends meet.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

A complete production of "The House of a Thousand Candles" is promised on the representation at the Myers theatre, Tuesday, Jan. 24.

All the scenery used in its four acts is carried, while all the accessories which make its representations so different and unusual will be found complete. Despite the air of mystery that pervades the drama there is real enjoyment in every line. It is not the ghostly that sends the cold chills down the back or that repulses by lurid touches, but it is the hidden and unknown that is handled with a dash of comedy. It is because of this that the book, as well as its dramatization, has become so popular. Geo. Winn, a gifted and well known character actor, assumes the role of Bates, which is decidedly the oddest type given to the stage in many years.

Considerable curiosity has been aroused by the announcement that Margaret Mayo's farce, "Baby Mine," is to be seen at the Myers theatre on Monday, January 23. This is the farce which proved itself the most potent laughing hit ever recorded in Chicago, where during the past summer it drew crowded houses to the Princess and Garrick theatres. The same condition holds true in New York City where "Baby Mine" is being presented by a duplicate organization in Daly's theatre.

In the company that comes to the Myers theatre there will be Consuelo Bailey, recently with Maude Adams in "The Jewels"; George Prebert, who is under a recent term contract to Wm. A. Brady, and who was Margaret Anglin's leading man in "The Awakening of Helena Richie"; Earle Mitchell, a graduate of Hoyt farces; Natalie Perry, from the E. F. Benson English companies; J. H. Davies, a twenty-two member of Brady companies; Gilda Varesi, who has been a member of Modjeska's and Salvini's companies; May Barton, who has been seen with Mrs. Fiske in "Salvation Nell" and others.

"Baby Mine" has been hailed as the dearest farce ever written by an American, and arrangements have been concluded for the Continental and English presentations of the farce. Weston Grossmith is to play Jimmy in England.

Before writing "Baby Mine," Margaret Mayo wrote "Polly of the Circus."

BROOKLYN.

Brooklyn, Jan. 21.—William Johnson died at his home here Thursday, Jan. 19th. He was the son of William and Phoebe Johnson and was born in Sussex, England, June 5, 1825, and came to this country with his parents in 1832. They settled in the city of Utica, N. Y., where he lived for three years. From there he moved to Skidder, Herkimer county, where he was united in marriage to Sarah Walker in 1847. To their union were born four children: Wm. R. George, Ada and John, the two younger ones dying while very young. He came to Wisconsin in 1871, and settled on a farm in the town of Union where he lived until three years ago, when he came to Brooklyn to live with his son, William R. Johnson. He lived here until his death, Thursday morning, Jan. 19.

1911. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at the M. E. church, Rev. E. D. Upson officiating.

Maybe They Know No Better.

Why should any one who can afford $20,000 a year for an apartment want to live in one?

An Exception.

The landlord of a village tavern stood at his door fondly gazing at his newly put up sign of the Golden Lamb, which specimen of zoology swung lazily over his door.

"Good morning, friend James," said a passing rustic; "what do you think of it?"

"I was thinking," said the host, "as how the lamb is a picture of innocence."

"Yes, friend James; but that one of yours is a picture of guilt!"—Tit-Bits.

"He had been supporting her with his arm about her waist, but now, as she held herself a little straighter and he could feel her lungs expanding with the pure air she breathed, he withdrew the arm and let her stand alone. Even the white moonlight revealed the color that was coming back into her cheeks.

"This Air Will Bring You Back to Life."

For a while she did not speak at all; then, as if replying to a comment of his, she said:

"Yes, it's beautiful. . . . But, Philip, it's dead. Dead."

"Not this air that has ozone sparkling all through it. It is alive enough to make your blood dance. It's doing that now."

He tried to persuade her to take a little exercise along the length of the tunnel, but she demurred to that. Instead, she asked him to bring out some bear-skins and let her sit there at the cliff-end looking out.

"And," she supplemented, "if you want to know what I should like most of all, it would be to have you bring your wings so that I can see you flying again, and a field-glass that I can watch you through."

He felt some hesitation, partly out of a fear of leaving her and partly from a doubt concerning his own strength; but neither of these reasons was one he cared to avow. So he untied the bundle that had lain disused so long, spread and tightened and tested it, and at last, with a nod of farewell to the girl, dived off the cliff-head.

Any doubt he may have had concerning his strength disappeared at once. The mere touch of those great wings of his seemed to bring it all back, and hope and joy and confidence along with it.

He made his dive as shallow as possible, and in the sheer exuberance of delight at being once more a-wing, he beat his way aloft again by main strength, towering like a falcon. All his old power was here unimpeded, yet every sensation it brought him was heightened and made thrilling by long disuse. By means of those great, obedient wings of his he played upon the capricious, vagrant air with the superb insolence of mastery. Every trick of flight was at his command, the flashing dive of the practical frigate bird, the corker-curve spiral of the tern, the plummet-like pounce of the hawk, and, at last, the majestic, soaring drift of the king of them all, the albatross.

So he hung there in midsky, and the world, white, frozen, immaculate—looked far away. The old, god-like serenity, untroubled, untrammelled, unafraid, came back to him. The soul opened its gates, up there, lost its boundaries, and all the spirit of the sky came in, immense, cold, clear as the all-pervading ether. This was Nirvana, though the old Buddhist adepts who had philosophized about it had never conquered the sky, had never bathed in it as Cayley on his wings was bathing now.

The declining moon sank lower, till the refracting ice crystals that filled the air caught its light slantwise and danced with it so that it flickered like a will-o'-the-wisp. The sky deepened from its bright steel-blue to purple. The silver light upon the snow faded, through lavender and lilac, to a purple of its own; only less deep than that of the sky itself. But the stars burned brighter and brighter, until it almost seemed they sang:

"Harping in loud and solemn choir
With unexpressed notes. . . ."

The words projected themselves quite unthought into his mind. He spent a moment or two, wondering where they came from, and then it came to him. It was a part of two lines from the "Hymn on the Nativity."

Somehow, the thought of Christmas gave his soul a wrench that brought it back into the world again. They had lost their reckoning of time, and, for anything he knew, this might be Christmas day. Perhaps those stars were carolling their Christmas chimes. Perhaps, down in the world of men, the windows were hung with holly and doorways with mistletoe.

Before his thoughts had advanced as far as that he was flying down toward the cliff-head. He could only guess at the length of time that had elapsed since he left Jeanne, on her head of skins, there in the mouth of the snow tunnel. "It must have been an hour or more, for the moon had been shining when he started, and now almost the last of its twilight had died on the horizon.

A sharp sense of his own delinquency in having left her to her own resources for so long, when she had so few resources to draw upon, increased to a sudden alarm for her safety, when he made out the black mouth of the tunnel and saw that there was no light at the farther end of it. She couldn't have been waiting all this time, out in the cold; and yet his eyes, as he hovered, seeking the exact spot to alight, certainly made out a dark object lying there upon the snow. His heart felt like lead as he dropped close beside it, and scrambled clear of his wings.

It was Jeanne; and for a moment he thought she was dead. She seemed as white and cold as the snow itself. And yet she was not dead; not even frozen. The hands he chafed so frantically were inert, but not rigid; and, as he drew her up in his arms and pressed his head down against her breast, he could hear, very faintly and slowly, the beating of her heart.

He picked her up in his arms and carried her into the pilot house. The air here was still warmer than that out of doors, but it was no longer exhausted and poisonous.

He laid her down for long enough to light the lamp, to throw off his stiff leather jacket and to get a little brandy out of the keg. This he mixed with a little water and, with the aid of a small ivory spoon, he succeeded in getting a little of it between her lips.

He took off her heavy seal coat, and the woolen jacket she wore under it, and, as well as he could, loosened the other clothing about her waist. Last of all, he gathered her up in his arms again, wrapped the great sheepskin bag about them both and, with the brandy and water within arm's reach, settled down to attempt to get some of the warmth and vitality of his own body into hers.

She was not fully unconscious now, for the next time he offered her the brandy she swallowed it. Her eyelids were fluttering a little, too, and presently she sighed.

"It was thrilling all over with a tremendous sense of power. He felt he could have brought her back from the very dead. His arteries seemed to be running with electricity, not blood.

Her lips were moving now, and he bent close to catch the whisper that barely succeeded in passing them.

"Don't—bring me back—Philip. It's—so much—easier to go—this way."

His only reply to that was to hold her a little closer.

She did not resist when he held the drink to her lips again; but, after she had taken two or three sips of it, she said:

"I shan't need any more. I'm getting quite beautifully warm again."

He knew it was true. She no longer felt lifeless in his arms, though she still lay there quite relaxed. He knew he could let her go now, safely enough. And yet he held her fast.

"I thought you were dead when I saw you lying there on the snow," he said at last, not very steadily. "If you had been, it would have been my own doing."

She contradicted him with a sharp negative gesture.

"You left me well enough wrapped up to have resisted the cold for any length of time. Besides, if I'd wanted to I could have come back in here. But—Philip—Oh, it seems a dreadful thing to confess, now you are here with me—I didn't want to. I just lay down on the snow, thinking I could go to sleep—and that would be the end—such an easy end!"

She felt him shudder all over as she said it, and she clasped his shoulders and held them tight. In a desire to reassure and comfort him.

"Did you mean to do that. . . . Was that why you asked me to fly away for a while?"

"Not! Not! It was something I saw while you were gone, something that terrified me. Philip, do you remember how many of the people of the Phoenix died of what father called the ice madness?"

He nodded gravely.

"Well, what I saw made me think that I was going that way, too. Philip, I was watching the moon go down, and gradually it spread out into three, quite far apart, and then they changed into strange colors, and stranger shapes, and began to dance like witches."

He laughed, but the laugh had something very like a sob mixed up in it.

"You poor child! No wonder it frightened you. But that's the orthodox way for the moon to set in the arctic. It's part of the same refraction that plays such strange tricks with the daylight colors. No, you're a long way from ice madness, Jeanne."

"But that wasn't all I saw, Philip. It wasn't the worst. I saw a ship against the moon, only it seemed too high above the horizon, somehow. That's the crowning impossibility. And then the moons began to dance, that wicked, witch-like dance of mockery. So I lay down in the snow and hid my face in my arms to . . . to go to sleep. It seemed so easy and, somehow, seemed right, too; not wicked any way."

She felt him shuddering again, and his clasping arms strained her so close they almost hurt.

"Thank God, I came in time!" she heard him whisper.

"But you did come in time," she reminded him, for she could still feel him shuddering with the horror of the thing. "You brought me back, and I'm not even afraid any more." She paused, and there was a little silence. Then she added: "And I'm quite warm now."

His arms slackened for a moment, and then once more they clasped her close.

"I—don't want to let you go," he said, and his voice had a note in it which she had never heard before. "Jeanne—Jeanne, dear, can you forgive me—forgive me that it's true? For give me for telling you? I have the whole world in my arms when I hold you like this. And life and death and promises, and past deeds, and right and wrong, are all swallowed up, just in the love of you. God forgive me, Jeanne; it's true! Then he unclasped his arms. "Can't you forgive, too?"

She caught her breath in a great sob. Turning a little, she clasped her own young arms around his neck and held him tight.

It was a long time after that before either of them spoke. Finally, Jeanne asked a question.

"But, why—" her voice broke in an unsteady little laugh, "but why do you ask to be forgiven? You told me the very first day, the day we found the yacht had gone, that you—loved me. That's why I allowed you to stay."

"Yes, but there's an infinity of ways of loving, Jeanne, dear. I had a right to love the soul of you, for that was what had given me my own soul back and my power of loving. But we set out to live through this winter in the hope of a rescue, the hope that when another day came it would bring a ship to take you back into your own real world. I couldn't go back with you, you know, I a man with a stain upon him. Since that was so, I hadn't any right to love you this—other way. I wonder if you understand, even now. I love all of you; from the crown of glory you wear, down to the print your boot has left in the snow. I love your lashes, your wistful lips. The touch of anything that is warm with your hands can thrill me. And as for the hands themselves—oh, I can't make you understand."

"Yes," she said very softly, "I understand, now."

"And yet," he began after awhile, "I haven't any right, when I must give you up some day . . ."

She laid her fingers on his lips. "We'll not talk of rights," she said. "Not now, not tonight. But there's something more to say. Philip, it wasn't the sight of the ship there against the moon that made me think I wanted it all to end. That was the excuse I made to myself, but it was only an excuse. The real despair came when I saw you flying, saw how gloriously free you were up there, and thought it wasn't love that kept you here beside me, but only pity—Well, a sort of love, perhaps, but not what I wanted, not what I felt for you. I'd

The Pure Food Law.

Secretary Wilson says: "One of the objects of the law is to inform the consumer of the presence of certain harmful drugs in medicines."

The law requires that the amount of chloroform, opium, morphine, and other habit-forming drugs be stated on the label of each bottle. The manufacturers of Morrill Cough Remedy have always claimed that their remedy did not contain any of these drugs, and the truth of this claim is now fully proven, as no mention of them is made on the label.

This remedy is not only one of the safest but one of the best in use for coughs and colds. Its value has been proven beyond question during the many years it has been in general use. For sale by Reliable Drug Co., druggists, members American Drug & Press Association.

When you draw away when I touched you."

She heard a sound in his throat that might have been a sob, though it seemed meant for a laugh, and she felt his arms tighten about her with a sudden passion that almost hurt. So she said no more, just kissed him and lay still.

It was a good while after that that she made a move to release herself. "Let me go now," she said, "and I'll get you some supper, or breakfast, or whatever we decide to call it—only you'll have to go down into the ice cave to get some more supplies. We've nothing much left up here."

She dropped down on a heap of bear-skins before the open door, and sat gazing out at the black velvety patch of sky which capped the snow tunnel. Even when she heard Cayley coming back up the ice chimney she did not immediately turn to look at him. It was, in a way, a sort of luxury not to think that if she waited she would presently hear his step come nearer and feel his hands upon her shoulders.

Look at Your Business from This Angle

Suppose your business was publishing a newspaper. Would you consider that you served your constituency effectually if you issued the paper only according to mood—if you missed a publication now and then, if the paper was issued only when you felt like working?

Now compare the newspaper to your business.

You have store news to publish. Every day or two new goods arrive.

Every day or so new prices are made.

Women consider the news of the stores of as much importance as regular news. Would it not be policy for you to publish your store news regularly?

Many stores in Jansville do—do you?
